CPES WELCOMES NEW BOARD MEMBER

Justice Nyarko of Daymark Energy Advisors Joins CPES Board

Hartford, CT (December 1, 2020) – The Connecticut Power and Energy Society (CPES) recently welcomed Justice Nyarko, Consultant from Daymark Energy Advisors, to the CPES Board of Directors.

“Justice’s responsibilities include oversight of market transformation along with multiple energy storage and renewable resource project assessments, which have mutually beneficial teaming opportunities for outreach and innovative technology programming,” said Michael Smalec, CPES Board Member.

“I’m thrilled to become more engaged with CPES and look forward to playing an integral role in the organization’s ongoing efforts to provide people who are new to the energy industry a place to connect and grow. I am also excited to share my experience on cross-pollination associated with work on diversity and inclusion initiatives,” said Justice Nyarko.

Justice is currently a Consultant for Daymark Energy Advisors and works with utilities, ISOs, and project owners and developers. He has led integration analysis for several energy storage and renewable resources seeking to participate in wholesale electric markets by identifying best-fit locations for interconnection, optimizing facility configurations, and evaluating market opportunities as well as classifying operational benefits within New England, New York and PJM.

Justice holds a Master’s Degree in Power Systems Management from Worcester Polytechnic Institute and a Bachelor’s Degree in Electrical Engineering from the University of Connecticut.
